

Gratitudes

I would like to thank, roughly “in order of appearance:”

Henk and José for your unwavering love, support, generosity and encouragement

My spirit guides, the four elements, and the Spirits of the Dance for designing and supporting the unthinkable

My humble high school dictionary with which I have completed this thesis (1993 Van Dale Concise Dictionaries Dutch/English, English/Dutch)

Joan van der Mast for your contagious love for dance, mythology and site specific work

Stefan for accompanying me through the roots of the research, Wayne through the trunk, and Chris through the branches

Sjaak van der Geest, Jojada Verrips, Johannes Fabian and the late Els van Dongen who taught anthropology at University of Amsterdam, for passing on your passion for this field

Christian de Quincey for a most unusual and inspiring lecture about Silence as a Way of Knowing and for inspiring feedback over the years

Jonathan Horwitz for humorously showing me the doors to the Other Worlds

Anne Stijkel, Wouter Hanegraaff, Klaas van Egmond and Joop Hoekman for strongly encouraging me to pursue this research

Ya'Acov and Susannah Darling Khan for your trust in this medicine, for sharing what you have learned so generously

The Iona Foundation in Amsterdam for making this PhD possible financially, and Ignaz Anderson and Michiel ter Horst for our engaging conversations during the

Stichting Jo Kolk Studie Fonds and Stichting Dr. Hendrik Muller's Vaderlandsch
Fonds for their study grants

Family and Friends for 'simply' loving me

Mike, Jacquie and Mary from Effings, Totnes, for all the Spanish hot chocolates and excellent cappuccinos and for making me feel at home in England

My personal M.O.T. team for body and soul:
Christian Chemin, Ross Hargrave, Aileen Knapp, Paula MacMenamin, Greg O'Brien

The librarians from Dartington College of Arts Library

My herbs that focussed and inspired me in the processes of harvesting, drying, labelling or drinking them

All my fellow dancers, with special thanks to the people who contributed to the research and my travel companions on board the ApprenticeShip and Teacher Training

The software developers of Endnote, HyperResearch and Workpace, and Apple
McIntosh designers for user-friendly and reliable products

The Ring of Brodgar on Orkney
